Monroe's dress sexy, expensive

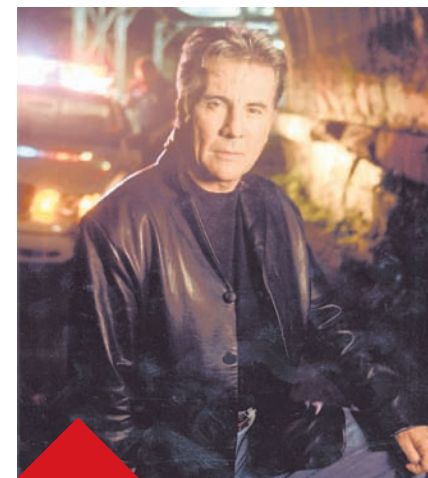

Marilyn Monroe's white "subway" dress sold for $4.6 million in a Beverly Hills auction Saturday night in which bidders paid another $2.7 million for three other Monroe movie outfits.

It was the first in a series of auctions to sell the massive Hollywood history collection that singer, dancer and actress Debbie Reynolds accumulated over the past 50 years.

Collector Keya Morgan said Saturday's bids were "totally crazy, especially in this recession."

With the auction company getting a $1 million commission, the buyer will pay $5.6 million. It had been expected to sell for $2 million, the auction house, Profiles in History, said.

23 'America's Most Wanted' ends

John Walsh, who in 1988 launched the TV phenomenon "America's Most Wanted" in the aftermath of the abduction and murder of his 6-year-old son, Adam, signed off after bringing nearly 1,200 fugitives to justice in 23 years.

According to the Associated Press, Fox cited high production costs for shutting down the series, but Walsh, 65, said he'd be back on TV soon. Other TV networks have reportedly expressed interest in picking up the show.

In his final remarks to the audience, Walsh said, "You've saved lives and gotten people justice."

2 Giffords visits Tucson

Arizona Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords spent two days in Tucson on a weekend visit, her first since she left the state for treatment after she was shot in the head, a tweet to her profile followers said Saturday.

"Wheels down Tucson. Gabrielle & Mark looking forward to a beautiful weekend," the message read.

Giffords was shot in the head at close range by a gunman who opened fire at her and a crowd of bystanders at a political event Jan. 8 outside a supermarket in Tucson. Jared Loughner, a 22-year-old college dropout charged with the shooting, was declared mentally incompetent to stand trial.

Sega says users affected by cyber attack

Japanese video game developer Sega said Sunday that information belonging to 1.3 million customers has been stolen from its database, the latest in a rash of global cyber attacks against video game companies.

Names, birth dates, email addresses and encrypted passwords of users of Sega Pass online network members had been compromised, Sega said in a statement, though payment data such as credit card numbers was safe. In a statement, Sony apologized to customers.

The attack against Sega follows other recent significant breaches including Citigroup, which said more than 360,000 accounts were hit in May.

Saxophonist Clarence Clemons dies

Legendary rock saxophonist Clarence Clemons died Saturday of complications from a stroke, bandmate Bruce Springsteen said. He was 69.

Clemons had played sax in Springsteen's E Street Band off and on since 1972.

"Clarence lived a wonderful life. He carried within him a love of people that made them love him. He created a wondrous and extended family. He loved the saxophone, loved our fans and gave everything he had every night he stepped on stage," Springsteen said in a statement.

Clemons played on such classic hits as "Born to Run" and "Thunder Road" and is widely credited with helping to shape Springsteen's sound. He died at a hospital in Palm Beach, Fla., where he had stayed ever since suffering a stroke June 12. REUTERS FILE PHOTO

MARKLEY

The music dies when you turn 20

Music is better when you're a teenager.

Not the music itself, but listening to music is a teenager's game. The stuff that sticks with you is all the stuff you listened to between the ages of 13 and 19.

Because I was a white kid growing up in rural Ohio, I obviously was a huge fan of the hip-hop, and to this day I can pop on those early Jay-Z, Nas, Outkast and 2Pac albums and nail every single word. I could go on tour in a mask performing "All Eyez On Me" and people would believe the rumors that Pac faked his death, is what I'm saying.

Nowadays I can love this band or that musician, but none of it has the kind of staying power as the CD you put in your car as soon as you got your driver's license. Now it's an ever-accruing jumble on iTunes, and the sheer volume of music available means the quantity has never been greater. But the sense of attachment—of feeling a certain time and place and forever associating that with a song—has never been more watered down.

On a recent road trip, I was digging through all my old CDs from high school and found Drag-On's "Opposite of H₂O," which I once used to get pumped up for high school basketball games (no doubt Marysville High School in Marysville, Ohio, still fears the combination of my jump shot and Ruff Ryders albums).

Can we talk about how fantastic "Opposite of H₂O" is? Even by rap standards, its prolific use of the N-word and gunshots as musical beats borders on self-parody, yet that was my favorite album for a solid half-year in the early '00s. It features a masterpiece of misogyny called "Ladies 2000," in which Drag-On includes the lyric, "I spent a lot of money on this mattress/so I can't stand a chick that give me whack sex."

Talentless jerks like Wordsworth and Byron wished they could've come up with that.

Intellectually, I understand this album has little redeeming social or musical value, yet it reminds me so powerfully of rapping in my hand-me-down Accord as I cruised through my hometown. I felt nothing but joy when I listened to it.

And maybe that's the problem, right? When you get older, you become more sensitized to things like "taste" and "talent" and "creativity." You read insufferable Pitchfork music reviews in which half-bright Bowdoin graduates explain why nothing you like is any good. You can't sing along with songs that use the N-word every second line because you now understand you're a self-conscious white kid whiter than a bleached albino polar bear on the bone-white moon.

And the worst part? You can no longer fall blindly under the spell of a visceral thump that makes you want to rain upward of 14 points on Marysville, Ohio's JV squad.

A reward poster and flowers at 18th and Halsted streets stand as a reminder of the hit-and-run accident that killed Martha Gonzalez almost two years ago. This week, the city kicks off its Chicago Pedestrian Plan to make crosswalks safer. PHIL VELASQUEZ/TRIBUNE

Walk this way

Chicago focusing on ways to improve pedestrian safety

Chicago Tribune

Work begins this week on the first comprehensive pedestrian plan for Chicago, coming fresh off a tragic reminder that city efforts so far have yielded unexceptional results in safeguarding people walking across streets.

A brown street sign marking Honorary Martha Gonzalez Place went up in East Pilsen last week on what would have been the Chicago woman's 38th birthday, almost two years after she was sprawled dead in the street, the victim of a hit-and-run driver who still is on the loose.

The accident that killed Gonzalez, the married mother of two young children, in the 1700 block of South Halsted Street prompted minor changes at the tricky T-shaped intersection of Halsted and 18th streets. But the modifications haven't solved the problem, residents and Ald. Danny Solis (25th) say.

PUBLIC MEETINGS

Monday's public meeting on the Chicago Pedestrian Plan will be from 6-8 p.m. at Farragut Career Academy, 2345 S. Christiana Ave. A second meeting will be from 6-8 p.m. Wednesday at the Copernicus Center, 5216 W. Lawrence Ave. For information, visit chicagopedestrianplan.org.

More than 3,000 vehicle crashes involving pedestrians, causing 34 pedestrian deaths, occurred in 2009 in Chicago, the most recent year data are available. The numbers are down from previous years, but city officials say the improvement is not enough. The target is to reduce crash-related pedestrian injuries by 50 percent.

The work to create a Chicago Pedestrian Plan begins Monday with the first of eight public meetings this summer to solicit public input on improving safety for pedestrians across the city. Recommendations and an action plan outlining the top priorities will follow in a draft report scheduled for release by the end of the year, said Kiersten Grove, pedestrian safety coordinator at the Chicago Department of Transportation.

Possibilities include adding more pedestrian countdown timers at crosswalks; curb bump-outs that shorten the distance of crosswalks; and median islands that provide a safe place for pedestrians when traffic signals change.

City officials, meanwhile, said they are studying whether additional laws are needed to force better compliance with traffic laws affecting pedestrians. They said it is too early to determine the effectiveness of a new state law the General Assembly passed last year requiring drivers to completely stop—rather than yield—to pedestrians in crosswalks.

The most fun graduation ever

Chicago Tribune

There were plenty of smiles Friday on the faces of the Northwestern University graduating class, as Stephen Colbert was on hand to deliver the commencement address.

"Thanks to you, the class of 2011. You are what some have called the greatest generation, not many but some, so far just me. I'm counting on you to not make me look like an idiot by saying it," Colbert said. "So be great, no pressure."

The star of the "Colbert Report" graduated from NU with a communications degree in 1986 and reminisced about his own years there. He also peppered his speech with topical jokes about such matters as the recent controversy over a live sex demonstration viewed by some students after an NU class, which he called "some truly advanced instruction in sexuality."

"I saw some pictures of the lab equipment, and I'm thinking you may have been scared of sex forever," Colbert said to roaring laughs.

"Graduates," he added, "good luck explaining what I'm talking about to your grandmother at brunch."

Men accused of pointing laser at police helicopter

Chicago Tribune

Three men face charges after pointing a laser beam at a Chicago Police helicopter Saturday night, police said Sunday.

Arrested were Alvin Kang, 25, of Northbrook, Jeremy A. Smith, 24, of Skokie, and Mark P. Lawrence, 25, of Winnetka. The three face misdemeanor charges of unlawful use of a weapon—pointing a laser at a police officer, according to a statement from Chicago Police News Affairs.

Kang, a graduate student at Northwestern University and who has a pending misdemeanor battery charge from a fight with a man this month, was ordered held in lieu of $10,000 bail. Smith and Lawrence have been released on their own recognizance.

A Chicago Police helicopter was above the 400 block of West Menomonee Street in Old Town Triangle about 9:50 p.m. Saturday when a beam of light shone into the cockpit.

The flight crew were able to use night vision glasses to pinpoint where the laser was coming from and sent officers to the location, according to police.

THE QUOTE

Libya strike kills 9

'Brad Pitt' arrested

2 No, not that Brad Pitt. Mexican federal police arrested a drug cartel operative nicknamed "Brad Pitt," who is accused of bombing a police station and participating in the killing of a man.

U.S. talking to Taliban

3 It could be months before efforts to broker peace between the Afghan government and the Taliban bear fruit, U.S. Defense Secretary Robert Gates said in an interview aired Sunday, adding that there had been contacts between U.S. and the Taliban in recent weeks.

Bin Laden charges dropped

7 The U.S. has formally dropped criminal charges against former al-Qaida leader Osama bin Laden, who was killed in a U.S. military raid in Pakistan last month.

In federal court in Manhattan on Friday, prosecutors disposed of a 1998 indictment that charged bin Laden with murder and conspiracy to kill Americans for his role in attacking U.S. embassies in East Africa in 1998. The indictment also alleged that bin Laden tried to attack U.S. defense assets.

The bombing of U.S. embassies in Nairobi, Kenya, and Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, killed 224 people.

The action came after a thorough analysis confirmed that bin Laden did indeed die after Navy SEALs raided his compound in Abbottabad, according to an affidavit from a top U.S. government official that was included in the filing.

The officials noted that facial recognition and photograph analysis confirmed the identity, along with DNA testing of the body.

"The possibility of a mistaken identification is approximately one in 11.8 quadrillion," the official said. The original indictment, filed in secret June 8, 1998, accused bin Laden of murder and conspiracy to kill Americans, among other charges, after the cab bombings that year at the embassies in Kenya and Tanzania. He was the only one originally charged, but other terror leaders were added to that indictment.

Identity theft plan doesn't fly

8 Federal and local authorities are investigating an apparent airline security breach after an American Eagle Airlines employee allegedly used another man's identity to get a job as a flight attendant.

Jophan Porter, 38, has been charged with six counts of identity theft and three counts of forgery among a lengthy list of other charges, according to the Miami-Dade corrections website.

American Eagle said the incident did not involve a customer and that it is involved in an investigation that includes the FBI, according to a statement from the airline.

When arrested at Miami International Airport on Friday, Porter—a native of Guyana—was carrying multiple forms of phony identity, including driver's licenses, a passport and a Department of Transportation identification card, CNN affiliate WSVN reported, citing the arrest report.

LET'S PLAY BRAWL

PICKING SIDES IN THE
CITY SERIES ISN'T ALWAYS ABOUT WHERE YOU LIVE

By Scott Bolohan

FOR REDEYE

Alan Reyes is not your normal Cubs fan.

Calling him a die-hard would be an understatement. Every Cubs Opening Day, he wakes up at 6 a.m. and hangs his Cubs flag outside his house. Then between 50 and 75 people show up to watch the game in his Cubs-blue room adorned with a Cubs flag, just as they have done for the past 24 years. His email address even references Ryne Sandberg.

"I live and die blue; I bleed blue," said Reyes, 42.

After a day full of Cubs, food and bean bags, the guests leave Reyes' South Side home until next year's Opening Day.

You read that right. Reyes is a South Side Cubs fan.

He was born and raised in Bridgeport, blocks from Comiskey Park, and now lives in West Lawn.

And he's not alone.

For two teams whose rooting interests are divided North and South—no questions asked—a surprising number of Cubs and White Sox fans call enemy territory their home. When the city series rolls around, as it does Monday at U.S. Cellular Field, things get, um, a little interesting.

Miranda Castellano, 20, has lived her entire life three blocks from the Cell in Bridgeport. Yet she has always been a Cubs fan.

She wouldn't call it a civil "war," but when the Cubs and Sox play each other, she said things can get "pretty nasty." Like the time the Cubs won a game at the Cell when she was 15.

"As usual when we won my family sat out in front of our apartment building all in our Cubs gear and waving our 'W' flag, we had multiple Sox fans flip us off and scream swear words at us," Castellano said. "Even my little brother being five years younger than me got a couple birds thrown his way."

Allie Brand is the polar opposite of Castellano. The 23-year-old, born and raised a Sox fan in Arlington Heights, has lived a block from Wrigley Field for a year.

"My dad's a Sox fan, and he didn't raise me to like no losers," she said.

Brand said Cubs fans give her a hard time when she's walking her dog while wearing Sox gear and said it's been a struggle living so close to Wrigley.

"Cub fans are the worst to be around," she said. "If I see one more overly tan girl with short-shorts, knee-high socks and Cubs shirt I might throw up. Plus the whole douchey frat-boy thing doesn't do much for me."

Her exile in Wrigleyville is ending soon, though, along with her lease.

"No regrets, it was fun, but totally over it."

Amanda Lee can relate.

Lee, of Wrigleyville, is a waitress at the Cubby Bear but roots for the Sox.

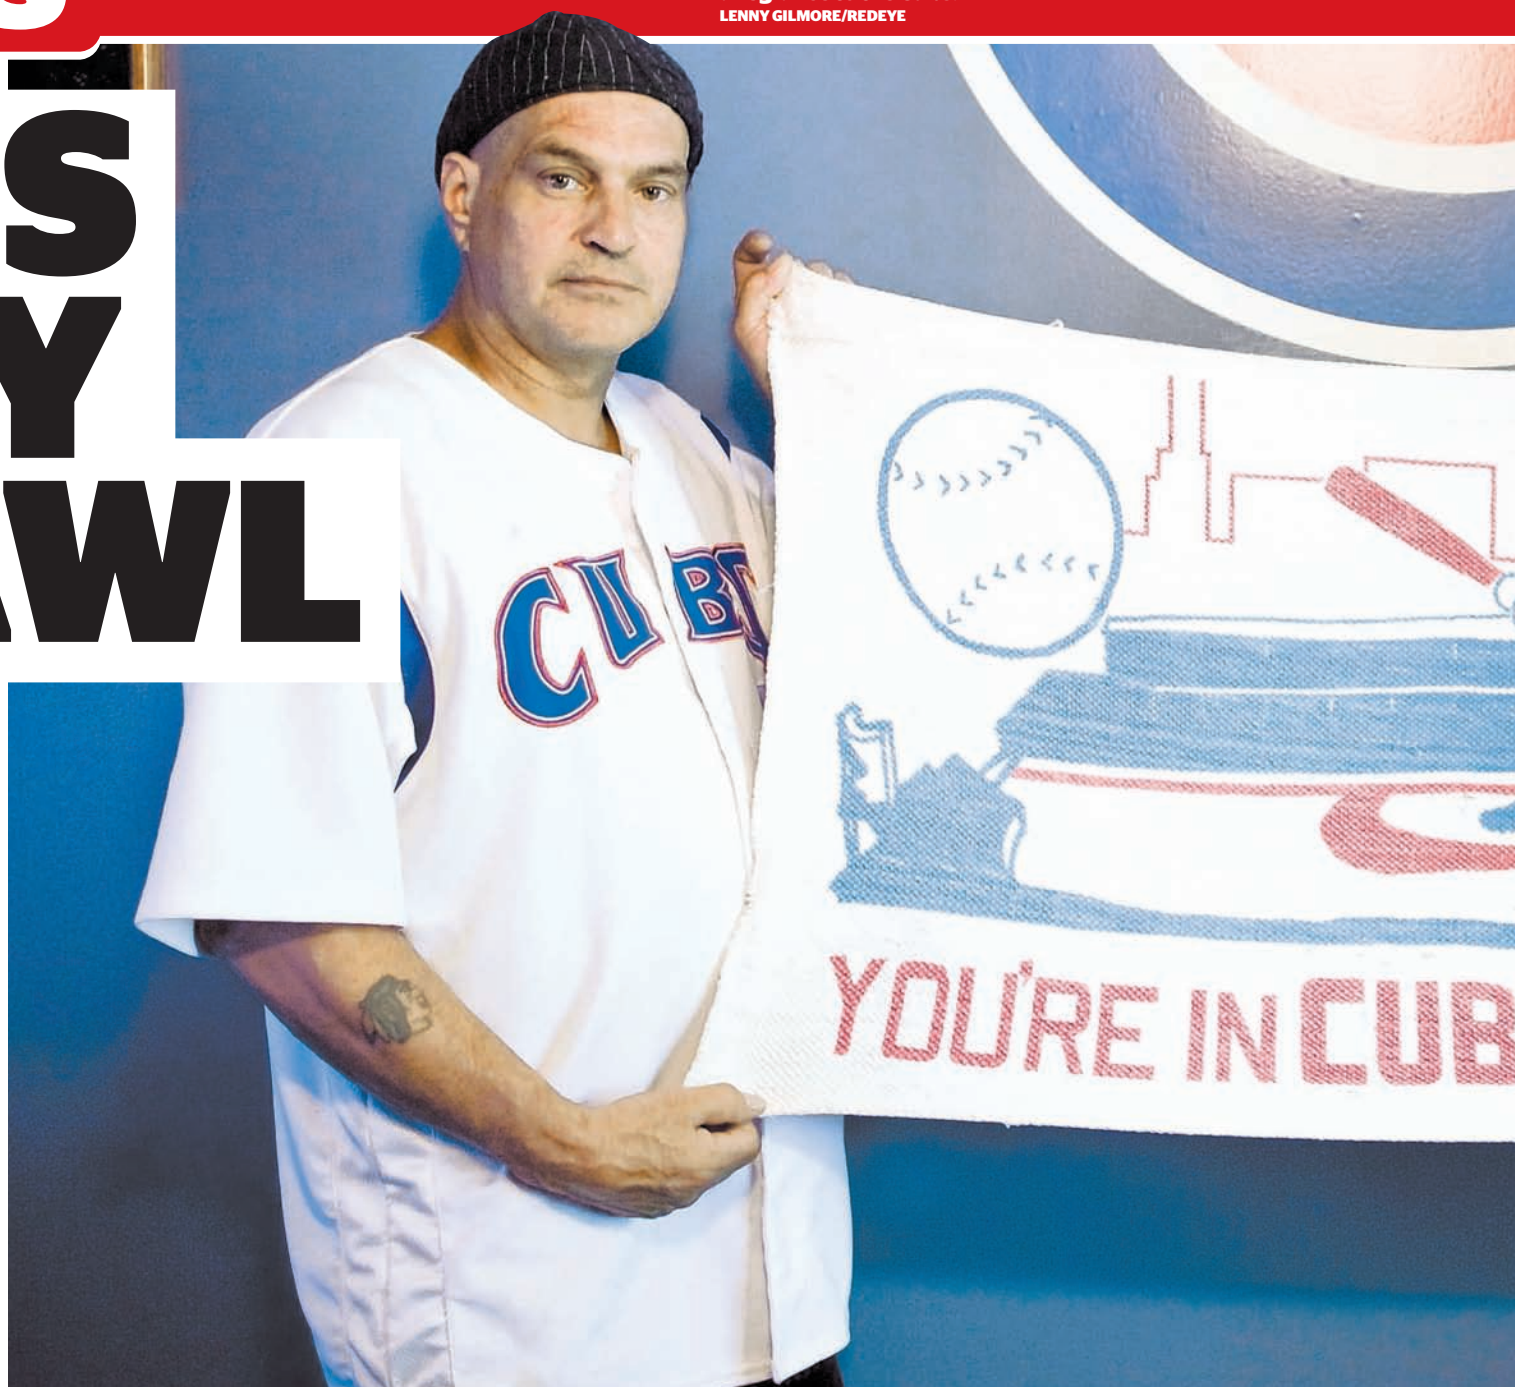

"I prayed when I was interviewed that they wouldn't ask me if I was a Cubs fan or not, because I wouldn't have lied," said Lee, 30. "All my co-workers know I'm a Sox fan. When 'Go, Cubs, Go' comes on I usually say, 'Blow, Cubs, Blow.'"

Lee moved to Chicago last year from the Bahamas. When she arrived, her friends forced her to choose between the Sox and Cubs.

"I was told when I moved here I didn't have a choice in being a Sox fan," Lee said. "My friend and my boyfriend, who is South Side Irish, basically told me if I was going to be accepted into this circle of friends, I was not going to root for the Cubs."

So she's backed the Sox ever since, even though Cubs wins are better for her bottom line.

South Side resident Alan Reyes (right) makes no secret of his allegiance to the Cubs.
LENNY GILMORE/REDEYE

"Rooting against the Cubs means rooting against money because you make more when the Cubs win—and I haven't been making a lot of money lately," Lee said.

Michelle Velazquez, 33, has lived in Wrigleyville her whole life. She grew up loving Carlton Fisk, Frank Thomas and Robin Ventura. She hasn't had many run-ins with Cubs fans, although she has dealt with the mysterious disappearance of a Sox decal on her car, which she's had to replace three times.

"I've never really been asked about [being a White Sox fan], which is odd since I always have on a White Sox hat," Velazquez said. "Probably my friends heckled me the most who are also from that area, since they are all Cubs fans."

Back on the South Side, Cubs fans admit they usually watch their team play from the comfort of home instead of braving the sports bars. But Mike Barnas, 26, a Cubs season ticket-holder from the south suburb of Palos Hills, said after the Cubs won the NL Central in 2008, he went to a South Side bar with some friends.

"I played 'Go Cubs Go' on the jukebox with my Cubs jersey on. Oh man, was that ever a mistake to do, but it was so worth it," Barnas said. "My friends and I wound up getting tossed from the bar with all the Sox fans cussing me out. It was classic."

Oct. 26, 2005, however, was a dark day for Cubs fans on the South Side. The Sox wrapped up a World Series title that night, and those Cubs fans had to watch their neighbors celebrate while they were left to dream of a Cubs return to the Fall Classic.

"I opened up my door and saw all the people celebrating and the fireworks going off," Reyes said. "I started crying and turned to my wife and said, 'When's it going to be my turn?'"

In recent years, Reyes has extended an olive branch to his neighboring Sox fans, inviting them to his Cubs Opening Day party.

"We've started to allow Sox fans," Reyes said, laughing. "But we give them a smaller TV in a different room."

1 What's your favorite moment from the Crosstown Classic?	The willing suspension of disbelief from both sides that this is a hard-core competition. Also, screw the Cubs.	Michael Jordan in a Sox uniform. Only time I ever rooted for a player in one. Ever.	Watching my Facebook wall fill up with pointless, asinine flame wars between Sox and Cubs fans.	The '08 season. 1908.	My least favorite: Finding out the troughs at Wrigley aren't full of food like on the farm.
2 Describe the scene when Ozzie Guillen passed his kidney stone Sunday.	Remember that scene in "Alien" in the diner? Yeah, a Venezuelan version of that.	He used language that would make Quentin Tarantino blush.	The words coming out of Ozzie's mouth were probably no worse than his postgame pressers.	Ozzie screaming, Oney tweeting, and both blame Kenny. So a normal day in Soxland.	I bet Ozzie won't blame an innocent goat for his suffering.
3 Instead of the BP Cup, what would you award the city series winner?	The Sammy Sosa Memorial trophy: a bronze kosher beef hot dog soaked in Jameson and beer.	The Tidy Bowl, awarded to the team with less crap in it.	A replica World Series trophy. Doesn't seem like either team is gonna earn the real one anytime soon.	The Crystal Harris trophy, but it may leave before it even starts.	Tin can.
4 What's your favorite Bulls/NBA draft rumor so far?	I heard from my guy the Bulls are gonna trade Dickey Simpkins for Mark Aguirre. My guy needs to get out more.	That Sarah Spain is indeed coming to my NBA draft party. There will be nachos, Sarah!	Brian Scalabrine for Dwight Howard. OK, OK, maybe I was the one who started that one ...	Rashard Lewis and Delonte West flirting with the Bulls. Oh wait, got my NBA rumors mixed up.	I hate anything that involves trading Noah! That guy loves grass more than I do.
5 Why did Rory McIlroy wear only blue shirts at the U.S. Open?	I dunno, to match his eyes? Whatever man, golf is boring to watch.	'Cuz red shirts are really bad luck! Every "Star Trek" fan knows that.	In case he was singing the blues after another choke job.	Victory pink doesn't exactly have a great ring to it.	To give Cubs fans a chance to see someone in blue win.

City serious

Since the city series began in 1997, there have been classic moments, huge hits, iconic images—too many to remember, but here are some of our favorites. REDEYE; TRIBUNE CONTRIBUTED

TRIBUNE FILE

Michael Barrett vs. A.J. Pierzynski

It is the iconic image and moment of the city series:

Cubs catcher Michael Barrett punching Sox catcher A.J. Pierzynski in the face after the two collided at home plate in 2006. Classic.

Sweep city

In 2008, the Cubs and Sox each pulled off a home sweep of the other team. For the Sox, it was their first sweep of the Cubs at U.S. Cellular Field. Both teams went on to win their respective divisions to qualify for the playoffs, where both were bounced in the Division Series.

Sunday: » N.Y. Yankees 10, Cubs 4 » White Sox 8, Arizona 2

Carlos 'Cubs killer' Lee

There are too many Carlos Lee-kills-the-Cubs moments to document—either in a Sox or Houston jersey—so we'll stick with his walk-off grand slam in the opener of the city series in June 2001 to give the Sox a 7-3 win at the Cell. That hurt.

The Meltdown

Just last June, Carlos Zambrano screamed at teammates after giving up four runs to the Sox in the first inning at the Cell before singling out Derrek Lee. Big Z would found himself in anger management soon after.

Quesadilla (2235 N. Western Ave.)—an all-vegetarian Mexican restaurant—is now open in Logan Square.

Eat free all week!

It's fair to say these are the best deals in town

By Linda Hays

It's barely the end of June, and you're already broke as a joke. Quit crashing your friends' barbecues with nothing but an appetite to contribute—you have plenty of options around town for complimentary eats.

Every night this week, score free pizza, wings, burgers or even cupcakes at these Chicago spots. Some watering holes may require a drink purchase, but chances are you were going to order one anyway, right?

CHUAN D. VO FOR METROMIX

11 P.M.-4 A.M. MONDAY

Evil Olive 1551 W. Division St. 773-235-9100

Dress up as a dead rock star for the theme at this week's Porn and Chicken Dance Party, which always features free chicken wings, porn on the TVs and DJ sets. The chicken usually runs out quickly, but the $3 Old Style tallboys are plentiful and hard to pass up.

Verdict: It's a bit late for 9-to-5ers but partygoers can definitely get crazy here.

BARRY BRECHEISEN FOR METROMIX

4-7 P.M. TUESDAY

Celtic Crown Public House

4301 N. Western Ave. 773-588-1110

Get free wings from a buffet in the front of the bar when you order a drink. The wings, usually barbecue with blazing-hot sauce, are on the menu and made fresh in the kitchen. Drink specials include $12 domestic buckets.

Tip: Don't cheat your servers just because you're cheap. Remember to tip well!

10 P.M. WEDNESDAY

Beauty Bar

1444 W. Chicago Ave. 312-226-8828

In lieu of the usual Pizza Pizza Wednesdays—a free pizza night that ended last week—this week the bar hosts The Rumble: Chicago, with live music from Yawn, The Distractions and Campfires. There's no cover (ever), and you can still nosh on free cheese pizza from Pie-Eyed Pizzeria.

Tip: This should go without saying, but get there early. The pizza may already be gone by the time the show starts.

8:30 P.M. THURSDAY

Burwood Tap

724 W. Wrightwood Ave. 773-525-2593

The historic bar makes up for its lack of a kitchen with free weeknight buffets. Tuesday's features wings and potato wedges from Chicago Joe's. If you do find yourself with some cash to spare, try playing Raunchy Bingo at 9 p.m. ($10 for two cards and a domestic draft).

Verdict: The food table is somewhat hidden in the back, but just ask the super-friendly servers to lead you to the goodies.

5-7 P.M. FRIDAY

More 1 E. Delaware Place 312-951-0001

Kick off happy hour with a free mini cupcake crafted from cocktail-inspired flavors such as margarita, pina colada, white Russian, pomegranate mojito, and gin and juice. Though not as strong as the drink, it's a nice after-work sugar rush.

Fair warning: The cupcakes are delish but small, so you might end up buying a full-size version anyway.

11 A.M.-3 A.M. SATURDAY

Crocodile Lounge 1540 N. Milwaukee Ave. 773-252-0880

Order any drink at the bar and get a ticket that can be redeemed for a free 6-inch margherita pizza. A free improv show (9 p.m.) downstairs features The Crocodile Players and three other local troupes.

Verdict: The pizza is fresh and cheesy, while the show rouses a few chuckles.

4:30 P.M. SUNDAY

Big Chicks 5024 N. Sheridan Road 773-728-5511

Pig out at a free barbecue on the back patio (inside during crummy weather) with hot dogs, hamburgers, brats, veggie burgers, potato salad and coleslaw. A drink purchase is required, so try the $2.50 vodka lemonade.

Tip: It can get packed on sunny days, but you'll surely make friends among the diverse crowd.

MUSIC CRITIC MATT PAIS' PICKS

Peter Gabriel

If a debate came up about who was the cooler Genesis alum—Gabriel or Phil Collins—whom would you choose? That's what I thought. How many jokes will be made at the show about holding a boombox in the air?

8 p.m. $45-$175. United Center, 1901 W. Madison St. 312-455-4500.

Kings Go Forth

Let's review: This show is free. It makes your Monday better. The band is ridiculously soulful and sure doesn't sound like it comes from Milwaukee. They do, though, and they're awesome. In conclusion: Go. With Ben L'Oncle Soul.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! Gemini

May 21-June 21
Impatient
Mars has you making demands. If you're lusting after a married friend, you'll insist that he become unmarried.

Cancer June 22-July 22

Someone is lusting after you in a big way, and you don't know what to do about it. The sun is bringing you loads of unexpected attention.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

You're convinced that a certain someone is "the one." It's too bad he or she doesn't know you're alive. The moon has you dreaming grand dreams. Stay tuned.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

The summer solstice is giving you loads of extra energy. Don't expect to have any major insights about your life. You're too busy just having fun.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

It's important for you to be friends with your partner, but Mars is showing you that you can't expect one person to fulfill all your needs. Keep those outside friendships going so you don't start to get cranky about your honey's inadequacies.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

An emotional sun is pulling you into a deep, intense place. You're thinking about the one who got away—the one you thought was the love of your life. Keep wondering.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

You don't have a lot of energy. Mars is urging you to take a nap and stop obsessing about your love life. Things will feel better later if you give yourself permission to step off the dating roulette wheel for a while.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

As the sun moves opposite your sign, you could go through a sexual crisis. You're wondering if you're thin enough, busty enough or have enough hair. You probably do, but your negative attitude isn't helping you any.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

You're restless and unsettled as Mars turns up the intensity. You wonder if your current honey will remain in the picture much longer. You won't find the answers this week. Be patient.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

The sun is encouraging you to connect at a deeper level with your lover. Don't just talk about the weather or those YouTube videos featuring funny cats. Explore risky territory, such as politics, conspiracies and spirituality.

Aries March 21-April 19

The summer solstice is making you lustier than ever. If you're single, you'll be on the prowl. Head for a nightclub, coffeehouse or book signing.

Taurus April 20-May 20

Business matters have you preoccupied, thanks to practical Jupiter. You shouldn't ignore that certain someone who has been patiently trying to attract your attention. A love connection could be in the making.

Lower Back Pain?

Are You or Someone You Know Suffering From Lower Back Pain?

Northwestern University is seeking volunteers who have lower back pain in order to determine where the pain is recognized in the brain. Participants will also be evaluated to determine why pain goes away for some people while it remains for others. This is a 12 month study consisting of 1 visit at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago and 5 MRI scans at Northwestern Memorial Hospital's Olson Pavilion. All visits will take place in downtown Chicago.

Eligible participants must:

- Be 18 years or older
- Have a history of lower back pain which began 4-16 weeks ago with pain radiating into the buttocks or legs
- Be able to undergo a MRI (no pacemakers, metallic implants, or spinal implants)

Please call 312-503-3181 for more information on how you can take part in this research study.

Lopez has no hard feelings

about last night

LUIS GOMEZ
lgomez@tribune.com

GOT A TIP?

Do you have a hot tip on a celebrity sighting in Chicago? E-mail Luis or tweet him @luisarroyave.

George Lopez would like you to know he and Conan O'Brien get along just fine.

Sure, Lopez's late night talk show, "Lopez Tonight," was bumped back an hour in November to make room for O'Brien's show, "Conan"—and Lopez acknowledges they don't have all that much in common—but he insists there are no hard feelings, and he hopes to put rumors of a feud to rest.

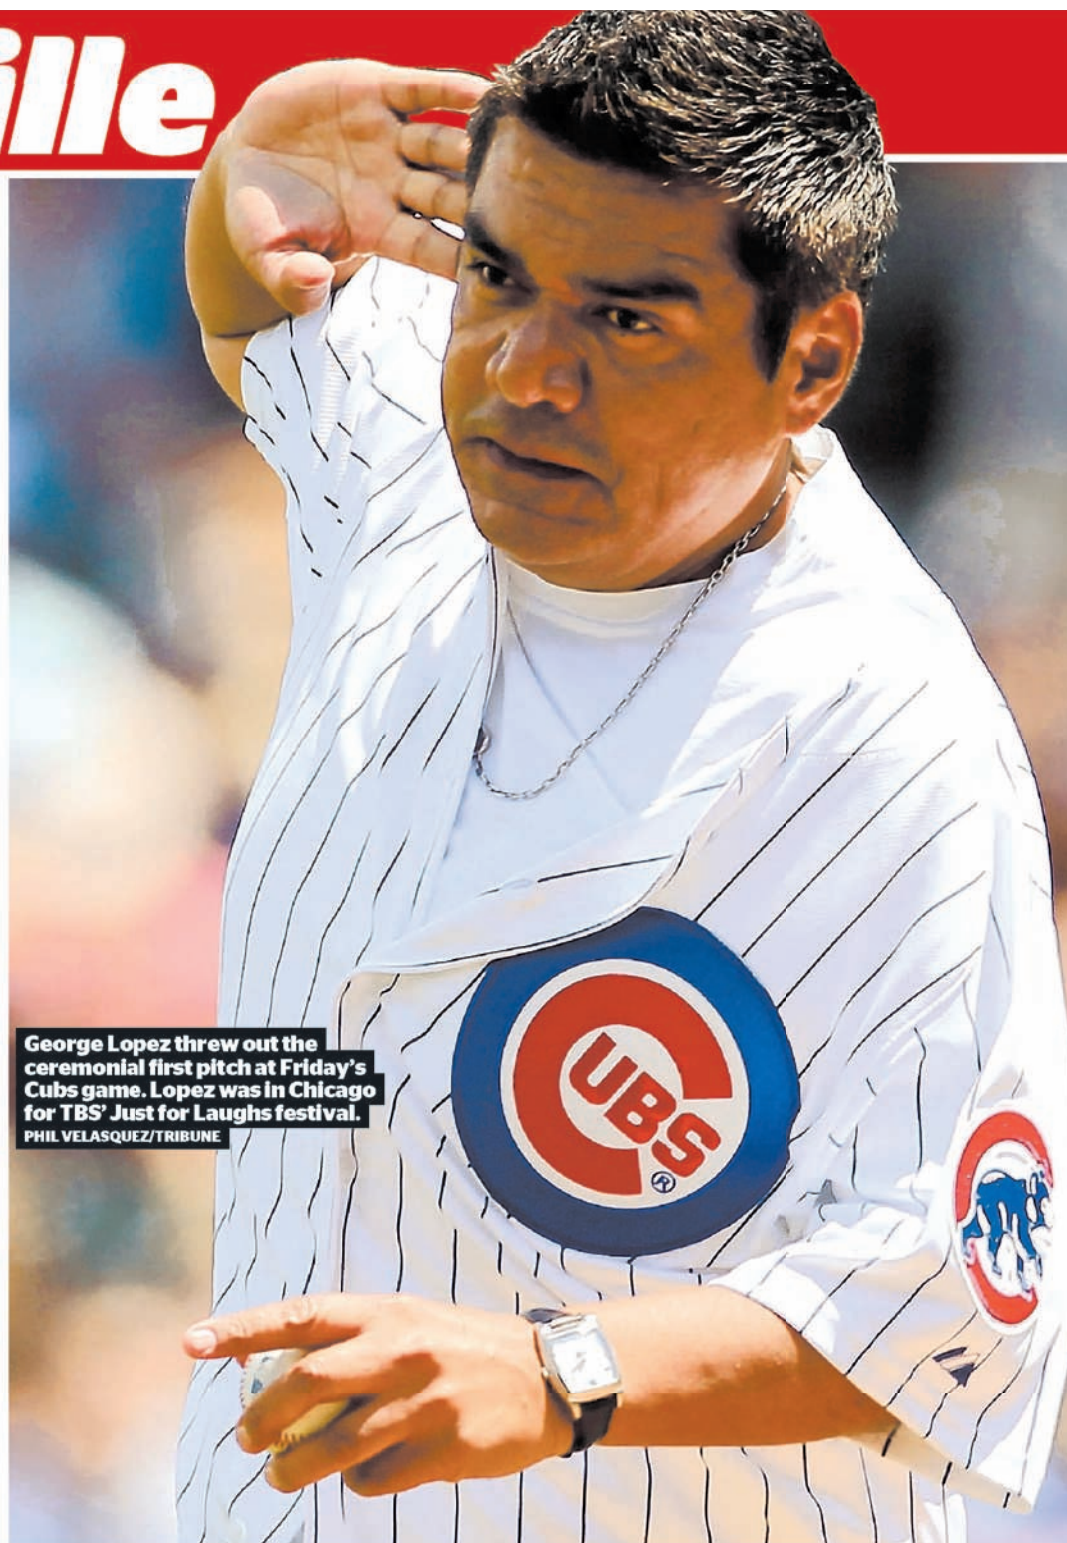

"When he came to TBS, there were reports like, 'they don't get along' and 'he took his time spot,' but nobody owns a time spot," Lopez said over the phone the recent morning after he and O'Brien appeared on each other's talk shows. "You rent with no option to buy. Nothing is concrete.

"Nobody knows the relationship between Conan and I is respectful. We're two completely different people, but the same things drive us."

Lopez, who hosted a comedy show, "Viva La Risa," at the Park West on Friday and performed with Russell Peters at the Rosemont Theatre on Saturday, is in his second season of hosting the TBS late-night talk show. There also have been reports that the show is at risk of being canceled because it has yet to be picked up for another season, but, like the feud rumors, Lopez says those stories are false.

"We're not going to get canceled," Lopez said. "We'll be canceled eventually—everybody gets canceled eventually. ... If TBS hasn't picked up the show in May, it's because it's not time to pick up. Just because 'Modern Family' might get picked up in May doesn't mean cable acts the same way.

George Lopez threw out the ceremonial first pitch at Friday's Cubs game. Lopez was in Chicago for TBS' Just for Laughs festival. PHIL VELASQUEZ/TRIBUNE

"I brought a young demographic to TBS, which Conan inherited. Remember, I was there a year before Conan came. I'm not hung up on, 'Oh my God, I might lose my show.'"

The "Viva La Risa" show at Park West, which, like the Rosemont Theatre show, was part of the Just For Laughs Festival, featured four comedians who have appeared on "Lopez Tonight": Brent Weinbach, Loni Love, Neal Brennan and Felipe Esparza. Lopez said he hand-picked them simply because they made him laugh during their appearances on his show.

"When I see someone I like, I don't pretend I like them. I really like them," Lopez said.

"There have been a few on 'Lopez Tonight' that really made me laugh. They're farther along in their career, experience-wise, than my generation was. They're smarter and funnier."

Lopez, who said he retired from performing at comedy clubs a few years ago, will co-headline the Divine Rascals Tour with legendary guitarist Carlos Santana in the fall. (Santana will play a set, and Lopez will perform his stand-up routine.) As much as he loves comedy, the 50-year-old comedian hopes there will come a time when he doesn't need to hit the road.

"I hope I'm not doing stand-up at 70," Lopez said, adding, "I hope I'm not doing it at 60."

Read my feelings, dude

Keanu Reeves (left) is getting way in touch with his emotions. The actor, subject of the mocking "Keanu is Sad" Internet meme, has just finished his first book,

"Ode to Happiness," the Guardian reports. He's planning to hawk the book, which features inkblot drawings with quotes like "I draw a hot sorrow bath," for around $50. Pain can be profitable.

Wine cooler fail

Call it an endorsement for Bartles and Jaymes? In an upcoming new book, "Not Afraid of Life: My Journey So Far," Bristol Palin (above right) says she was drunk on wine coolers when she lost her virginity to Levi Johnston (above left), online.com reports. She also calls her baby daddy a "gmat." Sounds like a sweet relationship. AP FILE PHOTO

Who needs sleep?

Heidi Montag (right) must have learned how to eat and work out at the same time. "I've been working out from, like, 5 a.m. to 7 p.m. for two months now. I've been working out really hard because I had this pool party," she told Us Weekly, blaming her weight gain on pie. Yes, your math is right—that's 14 hours a day.

Which body part gets "Twilight" star Kellan Lutz all hot and bothered? He's all about the steamy, sensual ... clavicle. "I ... really like the clavicle area, which is really weird but so sexy," he told People magazine, adding that he also likes "a girl's face." Hey man, whatever does it for you.

HOT UNDER THE COLLAR

"I remember during elementary school, I used to accidentally fall on [girls] during volleyball practice. And just a few years later, that's illegal."

—Ryan Reynolds during an interview on "Conan" on Thursday night, where he discussed how uncool he was during his childhood.
